General Meeting

July 15, 2009

Pat McMichael opened the meeting and reviewed the executive meeting.

Casey Lynch introduced the speaker, Pat Tami.

Pat is a Member of the California Board for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, and Vice President of NCEES. Pat discussed his roles with the board and NCEES, and opened the meeting for questions and comments.

The following is a brief summary of questions asked and the answers given by Pat.

Q: There was discussion a few years ago about "sunsetting" the board. How is the board surviving now?

A: There are 13 members of the board, 7 public non-licensed, and 6 professional. There is a sunset review periodically to justify the existence of the board to the legislature. The board is highly valued by the current government.

Q: There is a DVD for students (high school) about land surveying. Is the board following through to evaluate the effectiveness of the DVD?

A: The board's purpose is to protect the public, not to promote the profession. NCEES is very involved in promoting land surveying as a profession, including contributions to a PBS program, and to the National Surveying Museum in Springfield, IL.

Q: What is the Board's position on a continuing education requirement?

A: The board hasn't taken up the issue, but most states have a continuing education requirement. The architectural board has a current bill requiring continuing education, which will likely pass soon. CLSA has the responsibility to deal with this issue.

Q: Why doesn't the board act sooner on complaints filed against surveyors?

A: Three years ago, the average time to resolve a complaint was 2 years. It's now reduced to 1 year. The board's goal is compliance, not punishment, so it takes time for people to respond and take action to correct problems. Surveyors can help this process along by: acting as local subject matter experts across the state; providing more documentation with complaints, i.e. copies of contracts, documents, etc. The board has also requested two field investigators to help with their investigations.

Q: What can surveyors do to not be contacted by the board (complaints)?

A: Reply to client's emails, go to CLSA conferences, file surveys (err on the side of caution when deciding whether a record of survey is required or not), continue your education.

Q: Is there a difference between Continuing Education and Professional Development?

A: Not really, maybe could imply different needs for the current stage of a career.

Q: Is there a change in the trend of complaints against non-licensed practice due to the economy?

A: There are more rumors, not so much in Southern California. Some other areas have seen an increase in party chiefs or chainmen doing boundary work on the side. One tool the board has against unlicensed practice is the ability to shut off phones.

Q: Can the board take action against a company whose employee performs unlicensed work on the side?

A: Maybe, if they're aiding and abetting, but it must be proven.

Q: What's is the boards position on the use of a "Record Boundary"?

A: It has to be evaluated on a case by case basis. Use of a record boundary for TPM and LLA is up to local agency.

Q: If a partial survey is done for a Tentative Map, and later the project ends before completion of the survey, is a Record of Survey required?

A: You can choose to play the odds in the gray area, or play it safe. Do you want to take the risk for a few thousand dollars? The filing requirements may need to be clarified to eliminate gray areas and loopholes.

Q: Have there been enough volunteers for the licensing exams?

The following comments are from the State CLSA web-site forum:

- I am in the San Diego area - got my letter today. Passed! Thanks to everyone in the SD Chapter for your help. – CLSA website forum user name jgervais

- I attended the CLSA review in San Diego and believe it played a big part in my passing of the test. I live here in Minden, Nevada so it was quite the commute, but well worth it. – CLSA website forum user name – Ckleine

- Congratulations Cory Kleine!

I am glad that our brief program at the conference was a useful aid in your studies. Hopefully we can continue the program in the future.

Now that you are licensed, I hope that you consider volunteering with your professional association and "giving back" to the community. Volunteering at an examination program is a great way to give back and most people find that they learn more in the process.

May you have a long career and become a life-long learner in all aspects of Surveying!

Steve Martin, LS 7264

- Congratulations!! I received my letter just now and I'm still stuck to the ceiling!! I can't believe I passed and I can't believe the letters are out so fast!!!

I also can't believe how grateful I feel--so many people have helped me on this journey--boy, what a feeling!!!! Enjoy the moment and congrats again!

I'm from the Sacramento Chapter--Peg B.

- I hope I never come down from this cloud! Wow, what a feeling! – CLSA website forum user name - RasterMaster

- Congratulations to Jim Taylor - San Diego!!! I'm real proud that you stuck with it until you won the day; great job, I know you studied hard for it!!!

Way to go Greg and Dennis... Way to go SD CLSA Mike and Jack, and Dianne's team in LA... – CLSA website forum user name RobLS

- Hi Rob and thanks for the congratulations, I remember a few years back when you taught at our District 11 CT CLSA seminars and you said keep coming back , well I listened and hung in there and Whoopie LS 8610. Kudos to your Sacto CLSA review class for all their majority percentage scores.

Thanks again, Jim LS 8610

- Congratulations All!!
Nice work everyone! I know for some this was the first time taking the test, and I know for some others it's been a really long journey! If you were like me, your first thought was "I'm so thankful I don't have to study anymore"! In the style of that great philosopher and scholar: "Far from the truth was I"! Now is the time when you REALLY start learning about surveying.

Keep the 'studying' path going! Attend seminars, read articles, take classes. I learn something new every day (literally)! Also, if you have subordinates, make sure they are learning something new everyday. We need more skilled Professional Land Surveyors!

I'll get off the soap box now.

Peace everyone!! – CLSA website forum user name PLS 8176

- I wish everyone the best of luck with this year's results.

For those who have passed, I have a quote from the legendary and dearly missed Mr. Paul Cuomo;
"...The best thing anyone could ever do, is to get involved with their CLSA. It was the best thing I could do for my career, and you should too..."

So I pass this statement on to you newly licensed individuals. Give back to our organization. Be "that person" whom helps the next LSIT person pass this test. Be there on the front lines, getting people over the struggles of the test, studies and commitment.
As the Water Boy movie says "YOU CAN DO IT"! :-)

For those of you whom did not pass;
Statistically speaking, most of you did not pass...BUT...its okay!
Its okay not to have passed this year.
Do not get down, do not lose hope!
Do not get discouraged!
Do not quit!
"YOU CAN DO IT"!

If you are within appealing range.....you can pass this still! You have been handed a golden ticket to pass this year. As I have taught many times before, the appeal is a very simple concept. Get in, find your points, and get out. I found my points, and left after 3 hours of my appeal exam. I knew it as soon as I found it. I left early, and called my friends to share the excitement of finding the "silver bullet". So do not get discouraged.

If you need some pointers or pep-talk on how to approach the appeal....please do not hesitate to let me know.

Respectively,
Justin S. Pallamary, PLS

Los Angeles Chapter, CLSA
c/o Diane Wells, President
2230 Hartford Avenue
Fullerton, CA 92831

Dear Diane:

The Land surveying profession has faced many issues over the years on the federal, state and local levels. California Land Surveyors Association (CLSA), formed in 1966, has been assisting California Surveyors face these tough issues for more than 40 years. CLSA continues this tradition by addressing issues currently important to our members and the profession. Our role and approach to solving these challenges can vary greatly, depending on the particular issue. Sometimes the role is protective by working to enact new legislation or revise existing laws. Other times the course is one of education and outreach. There are occasions when our role includes a more proactive approach by initiating direct discussion with the stakeholders to negotiate meaningful solutions.

The Los Angeles Chapter recently brought an issue to light regarding the position of the County Surveyor in Los Angeles County. Los Angeles is a Chartered County that has consolidated the duties of the County Surveyors Office, among other offices, under the Public Works Director in conformance with Section 24304 of the Government Code. Historically, the Director has been a Licensed Civil Engineer authorized to practice land surveying (pre 1982). Recently, the County hired a new Public Works Director. The new Director is a Civil Engineer licensed post 1982 and, therefore, not authorized to practice land surveying.

On the face this issue and, the solution might seem quite simple. The County Surveyor needs to be a licensed Land Surveyor or Civil Engineer authorized to practice land surveying according to the provisions of the California Land Surveyors Act. Our initial research and interpretation of the government code indicates the issue is much more diverse and complex than it appears on the face. This is both a practice act and a title act issue.

CLSA has made this issue a priority on our agenda. With fifty-eight (58) Counties in California, the issue may be more widespread than was realized. This is not a local issue, but a statewide concern. While there are currently only a few Counties in this situation, there are many more that will face the same situation in the near future.

In a letter to all CLSA Chapters, I indicated that CLSA is taking steps to determine the full scope of the issue and the appropriate measures required to address it. I also asked that no action be taken by the Chapters until such time that a unified and appropriate course of action be determined. This letter is to update our members on the steps we are taking to address this issue.

Our first step was to identify how widespread the issue may be. We have compiled a list of Counties with the name and title of their respective County Surveyors. There are still a few Counties where the information has not been confirmed, however, what we are seeing is approximately five Counties where a post 1982 Engineer holds the Title of County Surveyor. Three of those have Deputy County Surveyors identified that are Licensed Land Surveyors. A pre-1982 Engineer holds the title in another nine Counties.

We contacted the Board for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors to request clarification on several issues specific to Los Angeles County and the consolidated title issue. The Board responded with a detailed letter that addressed each question. To summarize, it stated that although the County may consolidate the County Surveyor title, any individual acting in the capacity of the County Surveyor must be licensed as a professional Land Surveyor or specifically exempted and authorized to practice land surveying to be in conformance with the requirements of the California Professional Land Surveyors Act (LSA) and the Business & Professions Code (B&P). Although the Board response letter is quite clear, there is a question as to whether the County Charter or State statute takes precedence here. Therefore, CLSA is currently requesting further clarification from the Board as to the seniority, should a conflict exist between a Chartered County and State statute.

We have directed the CLSA Legislative Committee to research the specific role of a Deputy County Surveyor that is authorized by the LSA and B&P. We have also asked the Committee to research and identify methods to strengthen and clarify existing legislation or to propose new legislation to address the County Surveyor's title issue.

When we are confident we have gathered all the information and completed our research, I intend to open direct communication with the County of Los Angeles and work toward resolution of this important issue. I also anticipate opening a dialog with the California State Association of Counties (CSAC). It is apparent that we need to communicate to our County Supervisors, the public value of the County Surveyor. This dialog would provide educational opportunities and outreach to County Supervisors throughout the state on the valuable public protection the County Surveyor provides.

The good news is, this issue can be solved. Some Counties have actually come to the same conclusion and done the right thing by separating the title of County Surveyor and appointing a Professional Land Surveyor to hold the Office. We are methodically moving forward and I appreciate all the efforts and contributions of our members.

Sincerely,

Matthew J. Vernon, PLS
President
